HARD RUBBISH TO BE PASSED ON TO CHARITY

BURNSIDE Council hopes a new at-call hard rubbish collection system will help it maintain its status as Australia's best recycler.

Under a 12-month trial from July, residents will have to request a hard-rubbish collection. It replaces the current system where rubbish is picked up on a suburb-by-suburb basis at one time.

The council will pass on items to a yet-to-be-chosen non-profit organisation to recycle or resell items and most of the rest will be burnt for energy at Wingfield.

A survey last year found 62.5 per cent of Burnside's rubbish was diverted from landfill, the highest rate in Australia.

Mayor David Parkin said no other council included all three elements in hard-rubbish collections.
